

ANNAKOR LAWSON-GIKO, Appellant, v.
JAMES K. GIKO, et al., Appellants.

JUDGMENT WITHOUT OPINION.

Decided February 18, 1976.*

When this case was called for hearing Counsellor Wellington K. Neufville appeared for the appellant, and Counsellor J. Dossen Richards appeared for the appellees and filed a motion to dismiss the appeal on the ground of insufficiency of the appeal bond. After studying the motion and resistance and hearing arguments on both sides, it is adjudged that the motion to dismiss should be and the same is hereby granted, and the appeal is dismissed, with costs against the appellant. And the Clerk of this Court is ordered to send a mandate to the court below commanding the judge assigned therein to resume jurisdiction over the cause and enforce the judgment. And it is so ordered.
